Willy,

This sounds good, however, Im still super uncomfortable, given that Bitmain still has the much cheaper machines available, and Leo just told me in next few days pricing will be going down another 10%.

We may just need to hold our breath and hope for the best.

Just a thought though.. When you speak to the CEO again today, maybe there is a way to explain to him, that we are less concerned with the actual cash coming in, but their actual commitment beyond the deposit is the more important part.

Would they do up an agreement, pledging us shares in DPW or something like that, pending the final payment coming through? maybe there is a way to get better guarantees in place, that way, and at the same time give them more breathing room.

Best Regards,
Joe Kalfa

Had a big call with CEO of DPW which owns Super Crypto. It's a long story with banks and SEC filings but the bottom line is that they must have these machines and he claims they will definitely buy them. it's not if, it's when. We have another call scheduled for tomorrow night when he should be able to give me a firm date.

He hopes it will be this week.

He sounds honest and I think he can pull it off.

He sent me 2 releases below.

He needs to be able to tell his bank and investors that the machines will be in his premises in April.

Sounds like it will happen but might take a couple more weeks to complete all 1100 machines.

Good morning Willy,

I'm in the office and wanted to let you know that I am told I will know more this am. I'm waiting for Todd to get in with an update but I will try to get him to call so you can talk with him directly like we did last time.

Sorry again for this delay.

Hello Willy,

I know I owe you an update and Todd just confirmed that he is still working on this but doesn't have an answer for me yet. Again, it is a matter of timing of financing and he said that he will update me later tonight.

Sorry I don't have more to share but just trying to keep the communication open. I want you to know that this is top of mind and I will continue to push for the information that we need.

Can I get specifics as to what the issue is regarding payment?

We need to have a firm outside date of when payment and shipment will take place.

We are working with you to help you satisfy your obligation but we need to know when the transaction will be completed.

Look forward to your update.
